Journal of Educational Administration and History

Contents of Volume 35, 2003

Volume 35 Issue 1 April 2003

'Just a stepping stone' – the growth of vocationalism in the elementary school curriculum, 1914–1939
David Parker 3

Postwar headteachers' perspectives of 'good' teachers
Kay Whitehead 23

The difficulties in defining the religious affiliation of endowed primary schools: the Lancashire experience
Lois M.R. Louden 37

Localising history 1940–1965: the extra-mural contribution
Sarah Speight 51

Notes on Contributors 65

Volume 35 Issue 2 September 2003

Editorial 75

Where have all the men gone? Have primary schools really been feminised?
Penelope Harnett and John Lee 77

Frocks, frills, femininity and representations of the woman teacher in The Woman Teacher's World: reconstructing the early twentieth century English 'schoolmarm'
Wendy Robinson 87

The uses of imagery and the university: some examples from the New World of Australia, New Zealand and the United States
Anthony Potts 101

Peterborough Joint Board for Education 1945–1964: a unique local education authority
Betty Chambers 115

From Hadow to Gittins: a music education framed by the people or for the people – cultural aspirations and official validation of primary school music in Wales
Gary Beauchamp 127

Educational legislation in colonial Zimbabwe (1899–1979)
Kimberly Richards and Ephraim Govere 137

Book Reviews 153

Notes on Contributors 161

Title-page, Contents of Volume and Author Index, Volume 35, 2003 163